THE PROGRAM

Gone are the days when “irrational exuberance” filled the air and corporate chiefs were treated like rock stars. Now corporate scandals make business ethics and litigation the stuff of headlines and talk shows, while powerful corporations and the professionals who serve them face unprecedented scrutiny. The times are changing, and each of us must deal with these new realities.

How will the drumbeat of corporate scandals affect your next business case? Learn from experts in the following areas:

- Examination of witnesses facing changing bench and jury perceptions of executives and executive compensation
- Document retention policies and handling the discarded document scenario offensively and defensively
- The changing protection afforded Boards of Directors under the business judgment rule
- Handling a civil case when key witnesses are the subject of a parallel government investigation
- Balancing trade secret protection against the public's right to know
- Dealing with whistleblowers and employer retaliation
- How the expanding definitions of fiduciary duty will affect major business cases

Join ABTL for five days of study and fun at the world famous Mauna Lani Resort on Hawaii's beautiful Big Island while we explore how this new reality impacts the preparation and trial of every business case.
